

Dear FCC, Please do not drop the Morse Code requirement for Amateur Radio Operators. Someday, it may be needed in a crisis for communications when e-mail, ISPs, TV, phones are down. Also, it keeps Amateur Radio technical and does not put it down with unregulated modes such as CB that seem to be formless and non-professional in practice. It provides good standards and ensures quality in Amateur Radio Operators in a time where standards are down seem to be down in favor of numbers for everything else. Thank you.
